My 3wks at Strive

I've learned several things during my 3 weeks at Strive. I learned the importance of marketing myself in an effective and proficient way. The tools that were used are interviewing skills, communication skills, application, resume skills, and the importance of having a cover letter.

The most beneficial was the mock interviewing. I was always lost during interview never knew how to articulate what I can do to the interviewer. Strive has gave me great practice; I can now tell the interviewer about myself without any doubts and have confidence doing so. I am able to answer the questions in interviews that I once thought was impossible to answer.

My communication skills are alot better than they were meaning, being able to speak in front of groups of people, and feeling a little more comfortable when speaking in public. The information I learned about and appreciate the most was the information from the speaker that came to Strive.

Whether it was a graduate Yate, or the Board of Pardons, I learned from each that there is hope and that is what strive has given to me above anything hope.
