I got out of Strive and it me. I'm a lot more dedicated to my cause (employment) and I have a whole lot more ego. I'm more certain and sure of myself and everything I do. Now, I react to situations. People. I have a better understanding of the job life. My life. I'm feel at ease with the fact that, some one is going to interview me, and I'm gonna be ok with that. Like I used to always be nervous just thinking about being interviewed now it's like. I'm ready. I have a better understanding on how to deal with my boss.
Situation in the office. I mean I've learned so much. I think it would be kind of hard writing everything in two hundred and fifty words. I'm more open now. More certain. That I CAN do whatever it is I want to. I learned how to break down my wall that prevents me from advancing, piece by piece.

And last but not least. I got a new family. More opportunity and people who genuinly care. About me.

I got a lot of love from Strive.

I could never forget this experience. In all actuality I got a new life, a new chance to refresh myself and that something I truly admire.
