My 3 weeks at Strive went beyond the learning Experience or Application 101. It was more like another family for me. We were taught how to ~~recognize~~ recognize ~~how to~~ identify what it is to be me, all over again how to believe in my self when know one else does. how to move forward when I'm knock back. How to own my own faults, and you add all of that together it's not only having a job but career, a goal ^{is about} to come to life. Knowing how to hold my head up. is priceless!!!. I know I could always return. say hello to staff ~~and~~ ~~and~~ and do. job searching. Nothing like being around people who care about you; who you could almost consider making them a friend. Being around No pollution. In the air. I would say that Strive could not have come at a better time in my life I know now, that there ~~can't~~ ain't no stopping me now, and that as long as I know I could always go and get a refresher course. I will always be able to remind my self
